Telus offers tips for Internet, smartphone users

BY PAUL FREY
 MVP Staff

Telus representatives were at the Didsbury Municipal Library on June 5 offering tips to a handful of people on how to stay safe both online and through the use of smartphones.

Tara Daigle, a business analyst with the telecommunications company, said one of the most important things people can do to protect themselves from fraudsters is to regularly update the software on their computers and smartphones by downloading upgrades whenever they are prompted to do so.

She also said it's important to talk to young children and teens about how to avoid predators online. But she also said parents and others need to monitor youths' online habits to make sure they aren't inadvertently making themselves targets for predators.

Daigle said 99 per cent of people in Canada have access to the Internet. There are also 27.9 million cellphone subscriptions in Canada, more than one for every man, woman and child.

During a discussion about online bullying, Daigle said people need to respect themselves and others on the Internet by not over-sharing information and treating others online as if they were having a face-to-face conversation.

"You need to mimic online what you do in real life," she said.

Daigle said one of the simplest ways of protecting oneself is to not announce, for example, over Facebook, that one will be taking a vacation. Another innocent mistake is posting photos that one has taken of themselves or their children with their phones, because often people don't disable the GPS feature attached to each phone that would tell a predator or scammer where that photo was taken.

Regarding children exploring online, Daigle said parents need to monitor their children's activities extremely closely. She said children as young as three are often accessing the Internet, and could, for example, easily download child-friendly applications that end up costing hundreds of dollars.

Similarly, Daigle said teens' use of the Internet should be monitored to make sure privacy settings are set to an appropriate level and that they should disconnect from online and telephone use for a period of time.

Daigle said people should also be cautious when using a credit card online and make sure the site that is being used is a secure site. Secure sites will have either a lock on them or have an "s" behind the http address.

In an interview following the presentation, Daigle said another important tip to consider is not using public Wi-Fi access because it isn't as secure as a home connection might be and hackers could more easily access private information available on devices.

Telus has an online resource centre that explains how both financial and personal information can be kept more secure and tips for children to ensure that they stay more security conscious. It's available at www.telus.com/wise.

"There is online (safety) activities for children, there is resources and information on cyber-bullying, the latest software threats and viruses that are out there, pretty much anything to do with Internet and smartphone safety," Daigle said.

Didsbury firefighters perform well at challenge

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Didsbury firefighters performed well at the Southern Prairie Firefit Combat Challenge on May 31 and June 1 in Medicine Hat.

Four of the eight-member Didsbury team qualified for the national competition to be held in Gaspé, Que. in mid-September, including Matt Code, Craig Martin, Jesse Derksen and Kayray Falk. Times for Didsbury competitors ranged from two minutes and seven seconds to 3:10 in the obstacle course-type race.

"Those were all respectable times. We scored slightly better at our nationals last year, but this was our first tournament of the season so we did score pretty well. We also had to contend against the rain. It certainly does affect your confidence when you're running up the metal stairs and coming back down," Martin said.

"It was a great experience, especially since we had so many new faces this year. It was really neat to see the team building that went along with that and to see how far everybody's come from the beginning of the year," he said.

There were over 150 competitors from fire departments from as far away as Ontario and Missoula, Mont. A few of the Didsbury members will be attending a competition in the Montana city from July 1 to 4 after being invited to see how the Americans organize such a competition.

The race times in Medicine Hat give the group confidence heading into the next competition this weekend in Okotoks at the Central Prairie and B.C. Regional Firefit Challenge in Okotoks, Martin added.

"Now everybody knows where their weaknesses are and they know where to focus their energy," he said.

Members of the Didsbury Fire Department competed recently at a firefit competition in Medicine Hat.

Hundreds of students, parents, turn out for Cow-a-bunga

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Hundreds of students and family members came out on June 6 for the annual cow-a-bunga event at Ross Ford School in support of building a new playground structure at the school.

The event has become a tradition at Ross Ford School over the past decade. Students participate in dances and other activities on the school grounds as an end-of-school year celebration, while the community has helped raise thousands of dollars and given in-kind contributions towards a new wheelchair-accessible playground. The plan is to also have a specialized rubber surface to make it safer for all children to use.

The goal is to raise $125,000 for the project, at which point the school will apply for various matching grants to get to the $250,000 target.

Brent Runnett, the school's principal, said the hope is to break ground in the autumn for the project or by the spring of 2015 at the latest.

"There were a number of items that weren't part of the original fundraising, so we were looking at some of those things to be donated and slowly but surely we've had folks make commitments to us. Local businesses, local groups have been tremendous with us. I'm sure businesses get asked a lot to support different organizations and we've had a tremendous response again this year. We acknowledge that we're in a very good place," said Runnett.

This year's event was one of the best attended in recent years.

"I might have thought (on) a Friday night, it could have been a little quieter, folks heading off for weekends, but the weather turned good for us and this is as good a response as we've had in years, so this is very exciting to see," he said.

Police officers deserve MP action

Canadians from coast to coast are shocked and saddened by last week's horrific shooting deaths of three RCMP officers in New Brunswick.

And although the killing of the officers in Moncton comes nine years after the Mayerthorpe, Alta. shooting of four officers, the sense of public outrage is the same, as is the feeling that something must surely be done to prevent such tragedies.

Whether that something means Canada needs to impose much stricter and severe gun control measures remains a deeply divisive and controversial issue.

However, like it or not this latest police killing will certainly reopen the debate about whether a workable balance can ever be struck between firearm ownership and public safety in Canadian society.

For the time being, the focus is rightfully on remembering the dedicated officers who lost their lives in the line of duty last week.

Canada's national leaders fittingly expressed the feelings of the nation when they called the Moncton shootings both tragic and senseless.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the killings are "a stark reminder that our men and women in law enforcement put their lives on the line in Canada every day to protect our citizens and communities."

While NDP Leader Tom Mulcair called the shootings a "tragic reminder of the dangers police face as they perform an important public service protecting our communities", Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau said Canadians "unequivocally condemn this senseless act of violence."

As was the case following the Mayerthorpe shootings, the thoughts and prayers of ordinary Albertans go out to the families of the New Brunswick officers who had their lives taken away in this latest horrific example of murder in a peaceful community.

Just like Mayerthorpe, the Moncton shootings mark a dark chapter in Canadian history that will long be remembered for its futility and waste.

Yet these latest killings also highlight a terrible truth: that even years after the Mayerthorpe tragedy, the dedicated and committed RCMP officers who keep Canadians safe remain at extreme risk from gun-toting madmen.

Law-abiding Canadians want no more Mayerthorpe and Moncton-type shootings – and that is a message Prime Minister Harper, Mr. Mulcair and Mr. Trudeau above all others need to get loud and clear.

Parliament has the final authority to regulate and control firearms in Canada. As such, isn't it high time MPs put aside their differences and use the power Canadians have given them to do more, much more, to protect our police from gun violence?

Commentary

A sincere story of fatherhood

BY TIM LASIUTA
MVP Staff

As Father's Day approaches the importance of fathers and fatherhood is celebrated and commemorated around the world.

Being a father is not just fathering a child; it is a complex relationship that is far different than that between a mother and her children. It is, by no means, less significant, but rather a relationship that will define the way your children relate to authority, to the women in their lives, to the world around them at large.

Having said that, the existence of Father's Day is a perfect opportunity to celebrate the men in our lives who had the opportunity to teach us right from wrong, to teach us how to work, to guide us as we swung our first hammers, and to guide us to a place where we might make good decisions for those we have chosen to call "family".

This last February my father passed away in his sleep at the age of 73.

He listened to his children, though we did not always agree on his take on what the solution was.

He served his community well, no matter where he lived, as a member of the Knights of Columbus, Lions Clubs, Elks Club, a church treasurer and altar boy, a Red Deer Bingo Association executive, an active member of the Alberta Teachers' Association, and numerous other clubs.

He walked his community talk, putting others ahead of himself.

As a father, he spent time with his children and anyone who wanted to join in as we flew model rockets, guided remote control airplanes, went to museums, or just played games of billiards.

To his grandchildren, he was supportive attending graduations, christenings, performances, and attentively listening to their stories while taking time to bounce them on his gout-filled knee.

He showed his love of his children, grandchildren and daughters-in-law tangibly, yet never verbalizing it.

My dad, despite his faults, largely succeeded in his role. As he aged, and his health grew worse, his capacity to listen and appreciate those around him increased. He said "thank you" more often, and even amidst pain did not complain even though it incapacitated him, just like his father before him.

As a father of four children, and father-in-law to a marvelous young man, I can only pray that I am a father who attempts to practise patience, a father who is able to allow my kids to make mistakes without "I told you so", a father who can be tender, yet truthful, a father who is supportive of dreams I may never see come to fruition, and a father who can be counted on to be there, no matter what the need, and a father who loves, despite the cost.

That is a father, and what I am striving for.

MY DAD IS A SUPERDAD BECAUSE...

To help celebrate our fathers, the Innisfail Province wants you to tell us why "My dad is a superdad." Entries can be emailed to tlasiuta@innisfail.greatwest.ca. The winning entry will be published in the newspaper and the father will receive a Superman DVD. Be creative; send a photo of yourself and your dad.

Up, up, and away!

Counterfeit currency being passed

Didsbury RCMP report that two counterfeit $100 American bills were passed at Didsbury Liquor near the end of April. RCMP say employees didn't notice the bills were fake until the end of May. There are no suspects in the incident.

Cpl. Clint Gulash said the RCMP want to make business owners aware of the recent occurrence and suggested that businesses should not accept American currency, especially large denominations.

Truck stolen

Sometime between May 23 and 26, a white 2006 Ford F-350 pickup truck was stolen when it was parked in the lot at Gil's Truck and Auto. The truck had an Alberta licence plate of NAE 376.

Highway sweeper stolen

RCMP received a report on June 4 that a yellow highway sweeper was stolen from the compound at Westcan Seal Coating. The sweeper was a 2007 Broce RJ-350.

Phone scam circulating

The RCMP are warning the public to remain vigilant after they received a report on June 1 that an elderly woman received a call from someone claiming to be from victims' services and asked for credit card information. RCMP say that victims' services will never ask for credit card information and doesn't solicit funds over the phone.

Victims' services only raises funds in public venues, such as golf tournaments and charity checkstops. Any services offered by victims' services are free to those who need them.

If unsuspecting people encounter what they think might be a telephone scam, RCMP advise people to get the phone number of the person that did the soliciting. If the call is legitimate, the caller will provide a telephone number so that people can call back and verify the call was legitimate.

Westglen athletes perform well at South Central championships

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Four Westglen School athletes had top three finishes in their events at the South Central Zone Track and Field Championships on June 3 at the Foothills Track and Field Centre in Calgary.

Nils Haeni topped all competitors for his age group in the shot put, while Edan Lemieux finished second in the shot put in his division. Evan Gray finished third in the triple jump while Hunter Nelson finished third in the 800-metre run.

All of the 19 athletes that went to the meet from Westglen finished in the top 10, including Jason Gerber finishing fourth in the javelin, Jaeden Miller finishing sixth in the triple jump, and the team of Gerber, Cole Robertson, Damien Patrick and Chase Vandenhoven finishing sixth in the 4x100-metre relay.

Other top 10 finishers included Garret Crawford in the 3,000 metres, Rowan Vipond in the triple jump and 400 metres, Jasmine Skull in the discus and triple jump, Kassie Miller in the discus and high jump, Shelby Murphy in the 100 and 400 metres, Emma Longway in the high jump and triple jump, Lacey Newsome in the discus and shot put, Alexa Arthurs in the javelin and shot put and Lauren Ward in the hurdles.

The Westglen team as a whole finished 22nd out of 66 schools that attended the meet, said Tina Heistad, one of the school's coaches.

"You get points for your (top six placing). It was a very good result," she said. "We practised for about two to three weeks and we went to the county meet on May 26 in Sundre, and if (athletes) placed in the top two of your event in Sundre, then you get to go to the zone and compete against all the other areas within our zone. We had lots of kids going and did very well," she said.

The meet in Calgary was open to Grade 7 through Grade 9 students. While many students in Grade 9 at Didsbury High School qualified to go to the meet, none of them went due to another conflicting event.

BMX racer preparing for world championships

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

A local BMX racer has qualified for the world championships later this summer in Holland.

Tanner Vandenhoven will be attending the world championships in Rotterdam in July. He was invited to a selection camp on May 14 and 15 in Abbotsford, B.C. where he was one of five riders competing for the lone Canadian spot to compete in the international championship.

"It's pretty exciting because I've travelled a lot, but I've never been overseas before and I've only been to one world championship before (in 2007 in Victoria). It's going to be a little different," he said.

In preparation for the world championships, Vandenhoven also attended the U.S. championships on May 31 and June 1 in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"It was a tough competition. It didn't go too well for me. I had a couple crashes in my qualifier so I didn't make my final," he said.

Vandenhoven said he learned a lot at the U.S. championships, competing against racers who have gone to the world event and been world champions in their division.

"It was definitely one of the harder races, with faster racers," he said. "It just kind of showed me where I need to be and how I compare to those guys and what to expect, for when I go to Holland."

Vandenhoven was the Canadian champion in 2011 in the 15-year-old expert class. That competition was in Quebec City.

"My goal was to get the qualifying spot to go (to the world championships) and now I'm training towards making my final when I get to Rotterdam," he said.

Vandenhoven was selected to ride with the Canadian team in January as coaches had identified him as one of the best riders in his age group (17 years old). The riders in Abbotsford did several time trials and head-to-head racing on the second day.

"We all know each other well but it was a little bit stressful because you could see each other's times and you want to have the best time," he said.

Vandenhoven started racing in Airdrie when he was about eight years old. He now trains during the winter in Olds when a track is constructed inside the MegaDome on the Olds Regional Exhibition grounds. Vandenhoven said the facility provides a good way to practice during the winter months when most other Canadians aren't practising.

"Usually the kids down in the (United States) and warmer places get to ride year-round, and we've never had that. So when we get to build our own track and ride year-round it definitely helps the skill because you don't have to take six months off and then try and compete with everybody," he said.

Didsbury U-10 team wins in-line tournament

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

The Didsbury Renegades U-10 "A" in-line hockey team won its division at an in-line hockey tournament hosted in Didsbury and Olds on June 7 and 8.

The team went 4-0 to claim the U-10 title, while the Didsbury U-10 "B" team had a record of 2-2. The U-8 "A" team went 0-4 in the tournament, while the U-8 "B" team went 2-2. The U-12 Renegades finished the tournament with a 3-1 record while the U-14 team finished with a 2-2 record.

The tournament was split between the Didsbury Memorial Complex and Olds Sports Complex with a lot of interest shown in the in-line game throughout the county, said tournament director Ryan Sloan, who also coached the U-14 team.

Didsbury is the lone community in which the game is played locally. Aside from the six Didsbury teams across the U-8, U-10, U-12 and U-14 divisions, teams came from as far away as Edmonton, Calgary and Moose Jaw, Sask.

"We had some games (on June 7) up in Olds and people showing up and it's been really good getting the community involved. It gets a lot of awareness out there (to) kids that aren't involved in in-line are showing up and watching some hockey, so it's been good to help grow the sport and get the community involved," Sloan said.

Didsbury U10 Renegades B player Colton Campbell attempts to score on the Red Deer Gunners goaltender during their game at the Olds Sportsplex on June 7. The game was part of an inline hockey tournament hosted by Didsbury Renegades.
